

Alfaisal University Library

Policy on the Use of Electronic Resources

Alfaisal Library endeavors to provide access to electronic resources that support the research and educational needs of current Alfaisal University faculty, staff, students and on-site users. K.S.A Copyright Law and contractual license agreements govern the access, use and reproduction of the electronic resources that the University Library make available to its authorized users.

Reproductions (electronic or print) made by users of the University Library's electronic resources are governed by the K.S.A. Copyright Law, except when the resources are covered by license agreements. Reproductions made through printing or downloading are usually considered to be fair use if:

- The use of the reproduced material is academic in nature, and for nonprofit, educational purposes.
- The purpose of making the reproductions is for time shifting, that is, to make the materials available for study at the user's convenience.
- The reproduction is for a single copy, as opposed to multiple copies.
- The reproduction is reasonable in length in relation to the copyrighted work as a whole.

License Agreements

The use of many electronic resources provided by the University Library is governed by license agreements negotiated between the University Library and publishers or other third parties. Frequently these legally binding agreements impose greater restrictions on use than copyright law, and permit current student, faculty, staff and on-site users to access these resources for noncommercial, educational, scholarly and research purposes. They generally prohibit large-scale downloading of articles or other information, sharing of articles or other information with individuals at other institutions, and using articles or information for commercial purposes. Users should be aware that publishers may monitor the use of electronic resources to ensure that the terms of the license agreement are enforced.

Please be aware:

1. Sharing an access password with unauthorized users, including family, friends, or co-workers, may result in suspension or revocation of library privileges. Non-affiliated users may access most electronic resources from computer terminals in a campus Library facility.

2. Downloading entire issues of electronic journals, or attempting to create large databases from bibliographic or other data files, is prohibited by publisher license agreements. Systematic downloading of content, either manually or with specialized software is detectable by publishers and traceable to specific computer addresses. Misuse of these resources can result in the termination of the license agreement and the loss of the resource by the entire Alfaisal University community.
3. Engaging in actions intended to circumvent or defeat access control mechanisms of the Library or information provider may result in revocation of Library privileges and other campus disciplinary actions.
4. Sharing proprietary client software (for example SciFinder Scholar) connected to information resources is also prohibited under the terms of academic licenses.

Alfaisal University Library expects users of electronic resources to be aware of and act in compliance with all relevant state laws, and University policies. Access to and use of these resources is a privilege and must be treated as such by all users to protect the rights Alfaisal University community. Questions about the appropriate use of licensed information resources may be directed to the Director of the University Library.